"We're tickled to death," said Brett Kramer, managing partner of Pinnacle Investment Advisors, a Tulsa, Okla., firm that manages about $700 million worth of assets.

Mr. Kramer bought about $50,000 worth of American's shares when they were trading over the counter for about $1.35 each in February, a few days before the airline announced its merger.

Today, Pinnacle's shares are worth more than $413,000.

Solus, a New York firm that trades distressed debt, held 5.4 million American shares as of Dec. 20, 2012, according to court records. Thos Written by Editor Monday, 09 December 2013 07:46 - e shares traded then at around 86 cents for a total value of about $4.6 million. Today, they are worth about $58.7 million.
